Comsol VW Challenge heads back to Zwartkops

The Comsol VW Challenge is fast approaching the end of the 2015 season and the fight for the overall championship is far from over. Around 35 drivers will line up at Zwartkops on Saturday, 7 November to continue the battle.

Last time out Nic Clarke (Central Technical Services Polo) extended his overall championship lead to 14 points over Rory Atkinson (Comsol Polo). Zander Roos (Nathan's Motorsport Polo) is just three points further back in third with Waldie Meintjes (LTR / Marty's Body & Spray Polo) fairly comfortable in fourth place but, should any of the leading trio have a bad day, he could move into a podium position. Gerhard Henning (Toyota Replacement Parts Polo) and Brad Hall (Hellermann Tyton Polo), who are separated by only two points, round out top six in the overall title race.

Meintjes scored a full-house of 23 points last time out at Zwartkops to narrow the gap to class A championship leader Atkinson but he still has a 20 points advantage leaving Atkinson as firm favourite to claim the title. Devon Piazza-Musso (Tooling Promotions Polo) and defending champion James Hurley (The Starter Pack Company Polo) are separated by just one point in the battle for third. Iain Stevenson (Comsol Polo) is in fifth place on the log ahead of Derrick Smalberger in the Sabertek / Tyremart Beetle.

Clarke has the 2015 class B title in the bag but the battle for the minor placings is still wide open. Henning leads Hall by two points with Darren Nathan (Sextrader Polo), who has missed a couple of events due to business commitments, a further nine points adrift. Daine and Mile Stewart (GrandMark International Polos) are in fifth and sixth respectively.

The 2015 class C title will go to Zander Roos (Nathan's Motorsport Polo). The next six drivers on the log are separated by 17 points. Stuart Mack (Goldwagen JHB CBD & Wynberg Golf) holds second spot with a six point advantage over Elke van Vledder (Golf) Simon Levin (Auto ECU Golf) is currently in fourth place but, as his new car is not yet ready and his current car has gone to its new owner, he will drop down the order. Shaun Crous (X35 Energy Polo), Henry van Vledder (Golf) and Francois van Zyl (Jesus Saves Golf) occupy positions five to seven separated by just four points.

Practice sessions will take place on Friday morning with qualifying scheduled to get underway at 16h05 on Friday afternoon. Classes A & B will run together in their first race at 11h25 with the opening class C race following at 11h45. Race 2, where all three classes will run together, gets underway at 16h40.
